HENDRICKS DEAD

Our Vice President Passes Suddenly and Peacefully Away.

LIKE A GENTLE SLEEP.

WITH HALF CLOSED EYES HE SEES THE GREAT FUTURE.

With No One Near, a Life Which Was Filled With Much of Our Nation's History, Goes Out and Carries with it a Social and Political Legacy—its Life.

THOMAS ANDREW HENDRICKS, INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—Vice President Hendricks died very suddenly at his residence a few minutes before 5 o'clock. He came home from Chicago early in the week and complained of feeling unwell, but nothing serious was thought of it at the time. He and Mrs. Hendricks attended the reception at the residence of Hon. John J. Cooper, and after he came home he complained of pains in his side and stomach. In the morning he was no better, and his family physician, Dr. Thompson, was called in.

He gave him an emetic and later in the day an injection. Mr. Hendricks stayed in his room all day and the most of the time in bed, although he sat up at frequent intervals.

He received no callers but about 5 o'clock Mrs. Hendricks left his bedside to see a caller for a few minutes in the parlor. She was delayed longer than she expected and when she returned to the room she found that Mr. Hendricks was dead. The cause of a busy and eventful life had come peacefully and quietly.

On his face there was no indication of pain, suffering, and his eyes were only half closed, as if in a gentle sleep.

It was with the greatest difficulty that any information could be obtained further than that given above. There was nobody in his room when he died, and only Mrs. Hendricks, the servants and a caller in the house. Mrs. Hendricks was almost distracted with grief, and could not restrain her feelings sufficiently to talk.

The house was filled with anxious friends, while a crowd collected around the door, and it was found necessary to refuse them admission. Dr. Woodbury, who came in with Dr. Thompson, says that he is inclined to believe that the vice president's death was caused by some affection of the heart, for had it been apoplexy there would have been some indication of it in the appearance of his face. He complained principally of his stomach, in the morning, although there was a nervous retching on his face.

The news spread through the city like wildfire, and all the fire and other bells in the city were tolled six-and-a-half times, on stroke for each year of his life. All the newspapers put out bulletins and their offices were crowded with people anxious to learn the particulars. Manifestations of sorrow are universal, as the deceased was personally known to a large number of people, irrespective of party, with whom he was a favorite.

At a meeting of a number of prominent citizens held in the United States district court room a committee consisting of Senator Ben Harrison, W. H. English, Judge W. E. Niblack, Noble C. Butler and Aquilla Jones were appointed to confer with the family and make all the arrangements for the obsequies.

Senator Voorhees and Congressman Hoffman telegraphed from Washington that the government would be officially represented at the funeral.

It is expected that the funeral will occur on Monday next.

Mrs. Hendricks has no family aside from a wife, and is said to be worth a hundred thousand dollars.

Thomas Andrew Hendricks was born in Massington county, Ohio, September 7, 1819. In 1829 his father settled in Shelby county, Indiana. Thomas graduated at South Hanover college in 1841, studied law at Chambersburg, Pa., was admitted to the bar there in 1848 and returned to Indiana to practice. In 1849 he was a member of the legislature, and in 1850 a delegate to the state constitutional convention.

From 1851 to 1853 he represented the Indianapolis district in congress, from 1855 to 1859 was commissioner of the general land office and from 1863 to 1869 was a member of the United States senate, in which he was regarded as a leader.

In the Democratic national convention of 1868 in New York, he was strongly supported for the nomination to the presidency. An candidate for governor of Indiana he was defeated in 1869 and in 1868, but was elected in 1872 for the term ending January 1, 1877. He continued the practice of law until his election as governor.

His nomination for vice president upon the Tilden ticket is well remembered. From that time he remained in the practice of law at Indianapolis, without taking any very active part in public affairs, until his nomination as a delegate to the Democratic National convention at Chicago in 1884, by which he was nominated for the vice presidency.

Mrs. THOMAS A. HENDRICKS, the wife of the vice president, was Mrs. Eliza C. Morgan before she married Mr. Hendricks in 1849. Her grandfather, Dr. Stephen Wood, was one of the earliest settlers of Hamilton county, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks have had but one child, a son, who died when three years old.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The news of the vice president's death reached this city about 6 o'clock in the morning, and the president soon after received a telegram from Wm. H. English, containing the report. Upon the receipt of this the president's private secretary addressed the following notice to each member of the cabinet:

"EXECUTIVE MANDATE, Nov. 26. Sir.—The president directs me to inform you that the vice president died at Indianapolis, Indiana, at 5 o'clock.

ALPHONSO TO THE XI

Spain Bows Her Head in Memory of a King.

THERE IS NO SORROW.

HIS REIGN WAS A CHAPTER OF DIRE DISASTER.

The Cabinet Called With Only Two Absentees—Queen Maria Christina Appointed Regent—The Cabinet Resigned—the R-minus-Foreign.

ALFONSO XII, KING OF SPAIN. MADRID, Nov. 26.—The dying agonies of King Alfonso lasted almost continually from Monday afternoon until this morning.

Throughout Monday night his majesty had a succession of spasmodic fits, which were the result of fear, and the debility caused by his long illness and his inability to retain or assimilate food. Six eminent physicians from Madrid and two local practitioners of El Pardo were in constant attendance.

A general consultation was held Tuesday morning and the physicians decided that their royal patient was in danger of a continuance of the spasms throughout Tuesday, and, indeed, until he should be relieved of his agonies by death.

It was this prognostication by the doctors which scared the rumor that the king was already dead. The gloomy foreboding of the doctors was literally fulfilled. The king suffered intense agony at short intervals. Early Wednesday morning the attending physicians saw that the end was near and the royal family, the chief officers of state and the cabinet ministers were summoned. All remained in person except the ministers of war and the interior, who were unable to reach El Pardo in time. When news was also present, bearing the apostrophe benediction of the pope, which he was just in time to give to the dying monarch.

The king died peacefully at 8:45 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Fernan Canovas forthwith summoned a meeting of the cabinet, and it was held almost immediately, the only absences being the two ministers whose metonym. The cabinet formed at 10 o'clock, when the king's death was announced in accordance with the Spanish law of succession.

In compliance with another provision of the same law, all the members of the cabinet resigned, but they will retain their portfolios and perform the duties of their offices pending the announcement of the regents.

Alfonso Francisco de Asis de la Compañia, O. S. B., was the eldest son of Queen Isabella II. He was born Nov. 28, 1857. Few young men but a Spanish king of 28 years would have had so much natural crowding into their brief reign. When a child, Spain, under his mother's reign, rose to take rank among the great powers of Europe. Just as the internal progress of the country was making the most rapid strides, like a flash a great revolution broke out in 1868, which overthrew Queen Isabella and sent her into exile.

The young king was just then in Paris, paying his mother a Christmas holiday visit. He immediately laid aside his school books and prepared to return to Spain. He arrived in Madrid Jan. 14, 1875, and was most enthusiastically received. One year later he took command of the troops operating against the Carlists, and subdued the insurrection within a month. ## IT WAS NOT A SURPRISE

THE VICE PRESIDENT'S DEATH DID NOT COME UNEXPECTED.

"I don't believe Mr. Hendricks will serve out the first year of his official life. Few people know his physical condition."—Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The announcement of the death of Vice President Hendricks was not a surprise to some of his most intimate friends here. Indeed, some of them predicted his early death some time ago, and no one realized more fully than the vice president himself his frail physical condition. He remarked to his private secretary some time ago that he believed he had discerned symptoms of apoplexy of the heart, and that when he died it would be of that affection. A short time after the inauguration of President Cleveland, and while there were a number of prominent House Democrats in the city, a Democratic state senator, who had been on intimate personal terms with Mr. Hendricks for many years, said in conversation with a reporter:

"I don't believe Mr. Hendricks will serve out the first year of his official life. Few people know his physical condition. His life hangs on the most tender thread at this moment. That grange difficulty has poisoned his blood. It has been taken up to his brain, has diseased his nervous system, and he is liable to drop dead at any moment from paralysis, apoplexy or one of a dozen troubles of the brain or heart. Really he has not the physical or mental strength that a vice president should have. His mind is clear and strong except at intervals when he is momentarily befuddled, and loses all control of himself. I have frequently seen him fall asleep while in a conversation of the most animated character. When seated with a number of friends, or in the chair of a presiding officer he is liable at any moment to go to sleep or drop into a mental abstraction which makes him wholly oblivious to all that is occurring about him. There is not one chance in three that he will live a year, and not one in twenty that he will serve out his term."

Although very loth to speak upon the subject, the vice president's private secretary intimated that the condition of Mr. Hendricks, since his recent introduction into political life, was of the character above indicated. He said the vice president had lived in constant apprehension of death from affection of the heart.

Commissioner of Pensions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The first annual report of Commissioner of Pensions Black shows that at the end of the fiscal year, there were 345,125 pensioners on the roll of whom 2,965 were survivors of the war of 1812, and 12,212 widows of those who served in that war.

The amount paid for pensions was $54, 978,450, and the average value of each pension was $150.34. During the year the net increase to the pension roll was 23,369 names, and an increase in the amount of $6, 060,888. There were paid out $27,392 on account of arrears of pensions. Since 1861, 98,840 claims for pensions have been presented, of which number 340,827 have been allowed, aggregating in value $744,049,541. The report shows that of the whole number of invalid claims filed, 53 per cent. have been allowed.

Of the widows, 65 per cent.; dependent mothers, 51 per cent., and of dependent fathers' claim filed, 21 per cent. have been allowed, and of the aggregate of all classes 61-67 per cent. have been allowed.

Commissioner Black recommends that an increased pension be allowed in cases of total deafness; that the act of March 3, 1883, be extended to soldiers and sailors while in line of duty who lost an arm above the elbow joint, or a leg above the knee joint; that pension agents be authorized to use "penalty coupons" for their official correspondence under restrictions and penalties of existing laws; that three new law clerks be allowed for the pension appeal board, and that first proof of claims be required for preserving the records of the office. Commissioner Black also submits a plan for preventing the issuance of checks to fraudulent pensioners.

Here's a Hard One.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Gen. Nat. S. Lane, of Philadelphia, presented President Cleveland resolutions adopted by Senate Post, G. A. R., setting forth that Gen. Henry S. Halleck, a comrade of that post, a Union soldier who lost an arm in the service, had been removed from the position of postmaster at Philadelphia, without as far as they knew, any just cause. They therefore asked the president whether, in the absence of charges affecting a wounded soldier's official character or ability, such removal was contrary to the spirit that has and should pervade executive departments.

Turkeys.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Chief Clerk Boyd, of the navy department, was busy issuing checks to the employees on which was printed the following: "The secretary of the navy has arranged to deliver a Thanksgiving turkey to any officer or employee of the department who will avail of the courtesy."

"By direction of the secretary,
J. W. Hood, Chief Clerk."

Alabama Fins.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The last twenty-six cases on the docket of the court of Alabama claims were set down for final hearing. Owing to the absence of Gen. Cresswell, on account of the death of his mother, the cases assigned to him were undertaken by Walter Hising, assistant counsel, and were all disposed of and taken under advisement. The court adjourned until Friday next.

For Poisoning.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Anne Lyons was arraigned charged with the recent attempt to poison the Parker family by putting arsenic in the door. She was held for trial December 30.
